PREFACE

SCOPE. This section of the Standard Catalog contains about 1000 titles of the most representative, interesting and useful biographies, with descriptive and evaluative notes. Some biographies which few people care to read thru have been included because of their value in reference work. A few biographies hardly up to standard have been included because of the importance of the subject of the biography. The compiler has tried to consider all biographies appearing up to June 1st, 1919.

ARRANGEMENT. Most of the titles listed are classed in 920-928, Collective biography, or 92, Individual biography; but lives of artists, sculptors, musicians and actors have been classed with the 700s, Fine arts, altho listed here. Librarians are asked to bear in mind that many so-called "lives" of artists, musicians and writers partake more of the nature of criticism than of biography and will be found classed in the Fine arts and the Literature sections of the Standard Catalog, rather than in the Biography section. Lives of Jesus, 232, have been included by request. Lives of Negroes and of Indians of today have been classed in 92 rather than in the numbers assigned by the Decimal classification. Lives of combatants in the European war, limited in scope chiefly to the war, will be included in the History section under European war. The scheme of arrangement will be found on preface page v. In Individual biography, the entries have been made under the names of the persons written about, in order not to separate two or more lives of the same individual.

INDEX. A partial index of authors' names (p. 77) includes the authors of all biographies classed in 920-928, 232 and the 700s. It has seemed unnecessary to index the 92 section by author, as it is arranged alphabetically by names of biographies.

METHOD OF COMPILATION. Questionnaires were sent out to a number of librarians, before beginning the work, dealing with its scope, form, and the data to be included. With these suggestions to guide her, in addition to her own experience in public libraries, large and small, and in one state library, the compiler formed her plan of work. No attempt was made to go over in detail the ground so carefully covered by the American Library Association up to 1912, altho some of the books published prior to 1912 and not included in the A. L. A. Catalog and Supplement have been listed at the suggestion of collaborators. The chief sources used for the older books were the A. L. A. Catalog of 1904 and its Supplement (1904-1911) and the classified catalog of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh. Beginning with 1912, the compiler checked such titles as might be included in a library of 10,000 volumes, in the bulletins of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh, the Cleveland Public Library, the Pratt Institute Library, the St. Louis Public Library, and the New York Branch Library News. During the past year, the Bulletin of the Brooklyn Public Library has also been checked. These bulletins were clipped and mounted on cards, together with material from a number of other sources, including bulletins of library commissions, notably that of Wisconsin, the New York Best Books, the Booklist, and two lists entitled "Fifty biographies for a small library," compiled by Mrs. Julia S. Harron, and "Lives and letters, a selected and annotated list," compiled by the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh. The file of book reviews accumulated by the Book Review Digest was constantly used. In this way a tentative list of some 1,300 titles was made and the galley proofs were sent to a few librarians and to a teacher of art for criticism and suggestion.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS. The compiler wishes to acknowledge her indebtedness to the following librarians and editors who checked up the entire Biography section and gave much helpful advice: Mr. Hiller C. Wellman of the City Library Association of Springfield, Massachusetts; Miss Louise Hinsdale of the East Orange (New Jersey) Public Library; Miss Mary L. Jones of the Los Angeles County Free Library; Miss Mary Eastwood, editor of New York Best Books and instructor in the New York Library School; Mrs. Julia S. Harron, formerly connected with the New York Best Books and with the Booklist, now editor of the Cleveland Open Shelf; Miss Mary Katharine Reely, present editor of the Book Review Digest, and Miss Margaret Jackson, instructor in the New York City Library School, whose work on the Century Cyclopedia of Names and as editor of the Book Review Digest has given her a wide knowledge of men, women and books. Valuable advice on the art biography was given by Miss Helen Jackson, instructor in art in Miss Hills' School in Philadelphia.

The final decision as to inclusion or exclusion of any title has necessarily been made by the editor in accordance with the weight of evidence. Inasmuch as the selection has been made in this manner, the cooperators should not be held individually responsible for the result.

DATA GIVEN. The attempt has been made to enter biographers and biographees under the more familiar forms of their names. Pretty full titles have been given, followed by number of volumes when more than one, edition, illustrations (when important), date (latest copyright date being given when easily ascertainable), publisher and price. The prices have been taken in the main from the Publisher's Trade List Annual of 1918, tho a few prices are of more recent date. Series notes have been given when important. A few out-of-print books have knowingly been listed and these are plainly indicated. Almost every title is annotated. A large number of these notes have been taken from library bulletins, the Booklist, the Book Review Digest, and other of the sources used in selection. Mr. G. B. Utley, Secretary of the American Library Association, has kindly permitted the use of notes from the A. L. A. Catalog and Supplement. Class numbers have been given after each entry, because the same linotype slugs will be used later in the dictionary catalog.

SELECTION. The selection has been made with both the small and large library in mind, some titles being listed here that will probably be dropped from the 10,000 volume dictionary catalog. Scholarly and expensive books have sometimes been included in a note, but have often been listed because of their importance. Some valuable books have been omitted because they are not ordinarily called for in a library of 10,000 volumes. A few critical librarians will perhaps note the omission of some "books that no gentleman's library should be without." Others will note the inclusion of titles in their opinion too expensive or too "high-brow" for the smaller libraries. The compiler has tried to list not the ideally best books without regard to expense, availability or limitation of interest to a few scholars, but the best books that the average intelligent frequenter of our public libraries will actually read or study. In so doing she has assumed that the general level of intelligence is rising, and that a greater number of people than before the war, including our new women voters, are interested in worth while books.

USES. It is hoped that this Standard Catalog will be of use to librarians as a buying list, in reference work, and as a recommended list of the best reading for users of our public libraries; also that it will meet the demand of the reader for a printed catalog that he may take home.

STANDARD CATALOG SERIES. This Catalog will later form part of a dictionary catalog of 10,000 of the best books for adults on all subjects that should be represented in a public library of that size. As now printed, it probably includes more volumes than will be listed in the final Catalog. This section is issued in advance of the full Catalog in response to requests from public libraries and library commissions.

The Standard Catalog Series now includes the Children's Catalog, issued in three sizes, with its 1918 Supplement—(1919 Supplement will be issued in the early fall)—the Sociology section of the Standard Catalog (second printing), and the Biography section of the same. The Fiction section will be the next one issued.

About biography

Burr, Mrs Anna Robeson (Brown)
The autobiography. '09 Houghton $2.50 920

"A comparative and critical study of the origin, motives, ideals and psychological importance of the autobiography." A. L. A. sup.

Dunn, Waldo Hilary
English biography. '17 Dutton $2 920

"The first book in English to make a detailed study of the origin and evolution of English biography as distinguished from autobiography, which has received a like handling from Mrs Anna Robeson Burr ('The autobiography,' Houghton, $2.50). The treatment is not only historical, but includes some valuable definitions of the function and place of biography in letters, and its relation to other subjects, notably fiction, and also some excellent critical material on specific biographies. The author is [1916] professor of the English language and literature at the University of Wooster." Cleveland

The appendix contains Biographical compilations in Latin; Biographical compilations in English; English autobiographies; Shakespeare in biography

Russell, George William Erskine

Portraits of the 'seventies. il '16 Scribner $3.75 920

"Gossip, pleasant and spicy without malice, about distinguished people: Justin McCarthy, Gladstone, Disraeli, Joseph Chamberlain, Parnell, Lord and Lady Salisbury, Cardinal Newman, Lady Holland, Tennyson, Browning and many others.

"Our author has known every public man worth knowing for the last forty years, all those great men whom the rising generation never saw or only caught a glimpse of when they were past their best. He tells us exactly what impression they made upon their contemporaries." (Spectator) Cleveland

Sainte-Beuve, Charles Augustin

Portraits of the seventeenth century, historic and literary; tr. by Katharine P. Wormeley. 2v il '09 Putnam $3.50 920

Contents: v1, Cardinal de Richelieu; Henri, duc de Rohan; Cardinal Mazarin; François duc de la Rochefoucauld; Anne-Geneviève de Bourbon; Cardinal de Retz; Mademoiselle de l'Enclos; Tallemant des Réaux and Bussy-Rabutin; Abbé de Rance; Anne-Geneviève de Bourbon; Marie-Madeleine de la Vergne; Henrietta Anne of England; Louis XIV; Louise de la Beaume le Blanc

v2, History of the French academy; Corneille; Mademoiselle de Scudéry; Molière; La Fontaine; Pascal; Madame de Sévigné; Bossuet; Boileau; Racine; Madame de Caylus; Fénelon; Comte Antoine Hamilton; Princesse des Ursins

"In these volumes—taken from the 'Causeries du lundi,' the 'Portraits de femmes,' and the 'Portraits littéraires,'—some passages have been omitted; these relate chiefly to editions that have long since passed away, or to discussions on style that cannot be made clear in English. Also, where two or more essays on the same person have appeared in the different series, they are here put together, omitting repetitions." Translator's note

Slosson, Edwin Emery

Major prophets of today. il '14 Little $1.50 920

Contents: Maurice Maeterlinck; Henri Bergson; Henri Poincaré; Elie Metchnikoff; Wilhelm Ostwald; Ernst Haeckel

"Biographical and critical sketches of a group of the foremost thinkers of the day." Pratt quarterly

Several of the articles appeared in the Independent; each is followed by references for further reading

Six major prophets. il '17 Little $1.50 920

"Clever, readable, popular exposition rather than criticism of Shaw, Wells, Chesterton, F. C. S. Schiller, John Dewey and Eucken. Aims to introduce readers to the character, scope and messages of these writers. Published in Independent. Bibliographies, portraits." N.Y. state lib.

"Informal, good for study clubs." A. L. A. bkl.

Strachey, Lytton

Eminent Victorians. '18 Putnam $3.50 920

Contents: Cardinal Manning; Florence Nightingale; Dr Arnold; General Gordon

"The portrait that suggests most doubt is that of Dr Arnold of Rugby. . . . The details in Mr Strachey's essay may all be correct . . . but the perspective is all wrong, and the result is caricature. . . . The pictures of Cardinal Manning and Florence Nightingale are as distinguished as they are unconventional, and the story of the long tragedy of the mission and death of Gordon is a very fine piece of historical writing." Spectator 120:677

"Infused with sketches of almost Gibbonesque irony, these biographical studies of four distinguished and famous personages present them in aspects which are more or less familiar." Athenaeum, 1918

Thayer, William Roscoe

Throne-makers. '99 Houghton $1.75 920

Studies of four 'throne-makers'—Bismarck, Napoleon III, Kossuth, Garibaldi—and of Carlyle, Tintoret, Bruno and Bryant

Dictionary of national biography; ed. by Leslie Stephen and Sidney Lee. v1-22 '08-'09 Oxford $5 ea 920

"The most important reference work for English biography, containing signed articles by specialists, and excellent bibliographies. Articles are adequate, i.e. important names treated at great length, minor names more briefly, and are generally reliable and scholarly. Scope includes all noteworthy inhabitants of the British Isles and the Colonies, exclusive of living persons; includes noteworthy Americans of the colonial period. The first supplement includes biographies of those omitted from the main part and of those who died before January 22, 1901; the second supplement carries the record to December 31, 1911; the entire work includes 30,935 biographies. The index and the epitome serves a double purpose, i.e. it is both an index to the main work and the first supplement, and also an independent biographical dictionary, as it gives abstracts, each about one-fourteenth of the length of the original article.

The main work and first supplement [were] published in two editions, the original edition in sixty-six volumes, and a re-issue, 1908, on slightly thinner paper, compressed into twenty-two volumes. This reprint incorporates in the articles the corrections noted in the volume of 'Errata' and is, to that extent, to be preferred to the original edition. Libraries buying the work now are recommended to purchase the reprint, but libraries having the original edition and the volume of 'Errata' do not need the reprint." Mudge

"Articles are not of a very high order but the entire work includes a great many names and is therefore useful, especially for names not given in Appleton. Includes living personages. Not arranged alphabetically, so must be used thru the index; v14-15 are supplementary volumes published 1910 and 1914-1916; not indexed in the Conspectus noted below.

Issued in several editions, or printings, which vary somewhat, later issues showing some additions and rearrangements. Numbering of volumes is somewhat irregular, i.e. in some sets 14 is supplement v1, and in others v14, and two different volumes numbered as v15 have been issued, one in 1914 and the other in 1916. The first v15 is not found in all sets." Mudge

Universal pronouncing dictionary of biography and mythology. 4th ed rev '15 Lippincott 1v ed $10; 2v ed $15 920

"The most frequently useful of the general biographical dictionaries in English. Comprehensive, includes men and women of all nations and periods, including many still living; names from the Greek, Roman, Teutonic, Sanskrit and other mythologies are also included. Articles in general are brief; tho there are some long articles, pronunciation is marked and there is some bibliography, tho this feature is not important. Appendixes: Vocabulary of Christian (or first) names, with pronunciation, and equivalents in the principal foreign languages; Disputed or doubtful pronunciations.

The fourth edition tho revised so as to include considerable new material is not reset but is printed from the plates of the third edition (1901) with alterations in some of the older articles to bring them to date, omission of some minor articles, and inclusion of new names." Mudge almost impossible to draw any exact line of demarcation between literary criticism and literary biography. The compiler has tried to exclude from this section of the Catalog so-called biographies which are mainly criticism.

Adams, Oscar Fay

Dictionary of American authors. 5th ed rev and enl to '05 Houghton '05 $4.50 928

"Brief accounts of authors, including dates, biographic and critical facts, and list of works. There is a supplement of 146 pages containing more than 2,800 additional names. This is about 1,300 more names than in the supplement to the fourth edition." Mudge

Allibone, Samuel Austin

Critical dictionary of English literature and British and American authors, living and deceased, from the earliest accounts to the latter half of the nineteenth century. 5v '91-'96 Lippincott $22.50 928

Classified subject index

"A standard work very useful in spite of the fact that it is not entirely accurate and so must often be checked, for important points, by reference to some other authority. Based in part upon Watt's 'Bibliotheca Britannica' and reflects Watt's inaccuracies. Arranged alphabetically by authors, giving for each brief biographical sketch, full list of works with dates, and references to critical comments or reviews." Mudge

Brailsford, Henry Noel

Shelley, Godwin and their circle. (Home university lib.) '13 Holt 60c 928

Bibliography, p252-4

"A study of the influence of the French revolution on English political and social ideals as represented by Thomas Paine, William Godwin, Shelley, and Mary Wollstonecraft, author of the 'Vindication of the rights of women.'" Cleveland

Contents: Life of Johnson; Milton; Dryden; Swift; Addison; Pope; Gray

Kernahan, Coulson

In good company. '17 Lane $1.50 928

"Short, readable personal appreciations and recollections of Swinburne, Lord Roberts, Stephen Phillips, Edward Whymper, Oscar Wilde, S. J. Stone, and five chapters on Watts-Dunton, whom the author knew very well." A. L. A. bkl.

Lee, Sir Sidney

Great Englishmen of the sixteenth century. il '04 Scribner $1.75 928

"Studies of the characters and careers of More, Sidney, Raleigh, Spenser, Bacon and Shakespeare, with a chapter on the spirit of the sixteenth century." (N.Y. state lib.) A. L. A. sup.

Somerville, Edith Anna CEnone, and Martin, Violet (Martin Ross, pseud.)

Irish memories. il '18 Longmans $4.20 928

"Delightful volume of reminiscences, letters and family history of the two cousins whose literary partnership was productive of so many inimitable tales of Irish life. Both writers were great-granddaughters of the 'silver-tongued' and 'incorruptible' Chief Justice Bushe, of Ireland, from whom besides a love of the arts, they inherited a gift of vivid and racy speech. Their fruitful collaboration extending over almost thirty years, was broken in 1915 by the death of Martin Ross. Altho her name appears on the title page, the book is really a memoir of her by her cousin." Pittsburgh

Stephen, Sir Leslie

Studies of a biographer. 4v '98-'02 Putnam $6 928

Contents: v1, National biography; Evolution of editors; John Byrom; Johnsoniana; Gibbon's autobiography; Arthur Young; Wordsworth's youth. v2, Story of Scott's ruin; Importation of German; Matthew Arnold; Jowett's life; Oliver Wendell Holmes; Life of Tennyson; Pascal. v3, The Browning letters; John Donne; John Ruskin; William Godwin's novels; Walter Bagehot; Thomas Henry Huxley; James Anthony Froude; In praise of walking. v4, Shakespeare as a man; Southey's letters; New lights on Milton; Emerson; Anthony Trollope; Robert Louis Stevenson; The cosmopolitan spirit in literature

Symons, Arthur

Figures of several centuries. '16 Dutton $4 928

Contents: Saint Augustine; Charles Lamb; Villon; Casanova at Dux; John Donne; Emily Brontë; Edgar Allen Poe; Thomas Lovel Beddoes; Gustave Flaubert; George Meredith as a poet; Algernon Charles Swinburne; Dante Gabriel Rossetti; Note on the genius of Thomas Hardy; Léon Cladel; Henrik Ibsen; Joris-Karl Huysmans; Two symbolists; Charles Baudelaire; Walter Pater; The Goncourts; Coventry Patmore; Sarojini Naidu; Welsh poetry

"Twenty-three brief essays, markedly beautiful in style and rare in their critical acumen. The selection ranges from Augustine to Sarojini Naidu, the genius of the poet-critic endowing the work of some of the authors with a glamour which a perusal of their work dispels." Cleveland

Vedder, Henry Clay

American writers of today. '94 Silver $1.50 928

Contents: E. C. Stedman; Francis Parkman; W. D. Howell; Henry James; C. D. Warner; T. B. Aldrich; Mark Twain; F. M. Crawford; F. H. Burnett; Charles Egbert Craddock; E. S. Phelps; A. D. T. Vincent, Leon Henry

American literary masters. '06 Houghton $2.25 928

"Biographic and critical studies of nineteen men of letters from Washington Irving to Walt Whitman, each of whom produced some notable book between 1809 and 1860." (N.Y. state lib.) A. L. A. sup.

Dandies and men of letters. il '13 Houghton $3.50 928

"Twelve sprightly biographical sketches of English dandies, or men of letters inclining to be dandies, of the early nineteenth century and thereafter. They are written in an informal, anecdotal vein, and show evidence of considerable research into little-known aspects of such well known authors as Byron, Disraeli, and Bulwer-Lytton. Others treated are Brummel, D'Orsay, Samuel Rogers, Thomas Moore, Thomas Hope, Beckford, Peacock, Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe and Henry Crabb Robinson. Portraits of each." A. L. A. bkl.

92 Individual biography

Lives of individuals are arranged alphabetically under the names of the persons written about.

Abbott, Lyman

Reminiscences. il. '15 Houghton $4 92

Bibliography, p15
Appeared in the Outlook, v106-10, Jan. 24, 1914-Aug. 25, 1915

"An intimately personal record of Dr Abbott's service as preacher, author, and editor, reflecting the religious, political, economic and social development in America during his life of nearly eighty years." N.Y. state lib.

"These papers are reminiscences, not history. They lay no claim to accuracy. I have never kept a diary or journal. I have always been more interested in what is going to happen tomorrow than in what happened yesterday. . . . The reader will find few dates and many inaccuracies in these papers. They are simply a record of the impressions left on the mind of a man who has passed the three-score-years-and-ten as he endeavors to recall some of the personages and incidents of a somewhat busy but not adventurous life." Chapter one

Abdul Hamid II, dethroned sultan of the Turks

Pears, Sir Edwin. Life of Abdul Hamid, (Makers of the nineteenth century) '17 Holt $2.25 92

"An authoritative and popular history of the administration of the deposed Sultan of Turkey, 'whose title to fame is that he was the maker of ruin for his country.' The chapters are topical, which makes useful the chronological table of events at the end of the book. The author is English and weaves into the history the part played by British diplomacy." A. L. A. bkl.

"Will be the standard biography of the worst of all the Sultans." Spectator 119:717

Adam, Mme Juliette (Lamber)

Stephens, Winifred. Madame Adam (Juliette Lamber), la Grande Française, from Louis Philippe until 1917. il '17 Dutton $5 92

"A delightful biography of the warmhearted, brilliant French woman who played so considerable a part in French journalism and politics from the days of the second empire. As the mistress of a leading political salon, as the founder and editor for twenty years of La Nouvelle revue (1899-99), Mme Adam did much to consolidate the third republic and to stimulate the revival of the French national spirit. She numbered as her friends Gambetta and Thiers among French ministers, and such eminent writers as George Sand, Flaubert, Victor Hugo, Pierre Loti and Maurice Barrès." Pittsburgh

"She is here presented to us by one who has lectured and written a good deal about France and French history, and who has had the advantage of Mme Adam's personal acquaintance and interest in the present work. Her main authority, however, is, of course Mme Adam's seven volumes of 'Souvenirs.'" Times (London) lit. sup.

Adams, Mrs Abigail (Smith)

Richards, Mrs L. H. Abigail Adams and her times. '17 Appleton $1.35 92

"Well written account of a lovable and individual woman, the wife of the second president of the United States and the mother of John Quincy Adams. Contains extracts from letters and from John Adams' personal diary." Pittsburgh

"It makes more vivid the background of the times than the figure of Mrs Adams herself." Cleveland

Adams, Charles Francis, 1807-1886

Adams, C. F., jr. Charles Francis Adams, by his son. (American statesmen) 1900 Houghton $1.35 92

"Tells little of personal traits. Narration of services while minister to England; sheds valuable light on relations between England and America during the Civil war." N.Y. state lib.

Adams, Charles Francis, 1835-1915

Charles Francis Adams, 1835-1915; an autobiography. '16 Houghton $3.50 92

"Record of a life notably successful in business, public service, and historical writing, given a sombre tinge by his critical attitude towards his father, himself and some of his contemporaries. Interesting as a human document and for sidelights on famous personages and history." N.Y. state lib.

Contains also a memorial address, delivered Nov. 17, 1915, by H. C. Lodge

Adams, Henry Brooks

Education of Henry Adams; an autobiography; with an introd. by H. C. Lodge. '18 Houghton $5 92

"A type of autobiography which seems to stand absolutely in a niche of its own. Its wise philosophy of life, its deep understanding of human nature, its pervading charm of style and of mood, will surely entitle it to an abiding place among those rare volumes that are the perennial joy of cultured minds." F. T. Cooper in Publishers' weekly 94:1307

"An important autobiography, interesting in itself and because it is a criticism of cherished American institutions as they affected a brilliant man who had every advantage they could give. His association with his father in England during the Civil war and his lifetime acquaintance with men and affairs here and abroad make the record valuable as history. Privately printed in 1905; it was written as a sequel to his 'Mont-Saint Michel and Chartres'." A. L. A. bkl.

Adams, John

Morse, J. T., jr. John Adams. (American statesmen) 1900 Houghton $1.35 92

"Graphic portraiture and excellent study of our politics in the days of Adams, of the fortunes of the Federal party and attitude of its two hostile forces, represented by Adams and Hamilton." (Hartford courant) A. L. A.

Adams, John, and Adams, Mrs Abigail (Smith)

Familiar letters of John Adams and his wife Abigail Adams, during the Revolution, with a memoir of Mrs Adams. '76 Houghton $2.25 92

"Takes its place by the side of the most valuable documents of our revolutionary history." (Nation) A. L. A.

Adams, Mrs John. See Adams, A. S.Adams, John Quincy

Morse, J. T., jr. John Quincy Adams. (American statesmen) '95 Houghton $1.35 92

"Trustworthy in details; chief merit in its comprehension of essential character of Adams and its sympathetic interpretation of the man and his work." A. L. A.

Adams, Samuel

Hosmer, J. F. Samuel Adams. (American statesmen) '99 Houghton $1.35 92

"Interesting and appreciative, setting forth fairly the man, his work and times." (Nation) Furnishes substantially a compact history of occasions and manner of opening of Revolutionary war." A. L. A.

Addison, Joseph

Courthope, W. J. Addison. (English men of letters) '94 Harper 75c 92

Agassiz, Louis

Agassiz, Mrs E. C. Louis Agassiz; his life and correspondence. '93 Houghton $3 92

"This biography by his wife gives pictures of his early life in Switzerland, tells of his friendships with Cuvier, Humboldt and other distinguished scientists, of his scientific work, particularly in geology and ichthyology, of his work at Harvard, including the founding of the Agassiz museum." Pittsburgh

Aksakov, Sergiei Timofieevich

A Russian gentleman; tr. from the Russian by J. D. Duff. '17 Longmans $2.40 92

Russian classic published in 1856 and translated now for the first time into English

"Half imaginary memoirs centering about the author's paternal grandfather and describing his parents' courtship and early married life. The narrative closes with the day of the writer's own birth. It is accepted in Russia as a faithful picture of the conditions which prevailed in the district of Orenburg under Catherine the Great." Pittsburgh

A Russian schoolboy; tr. from the Russian by J. D. Duff. '17 Longmans $2.40 92

"The third volume chronologically, of the author's recollections, covering his school and home life from his eighth thru his fifteenth year, 1807-1815. It is a simple, quiet narrative but one of absorbing interest." Cleveland

Contains numerous pictures of peasant life, and open-air scenes of Virgilian beauty

Years of my childhood; tr. from the Russian by J. D. Duff. il '16 Longmans $4 92

"Tho this account of what he saw and felt between the ages of five and eight was not written until the year before his death at sixteen, it takes none of its color from later experience. We have what happened to the child, told so well indeed, that it has become a Russian classic, but giving us only a child's account of what he saw, felt and thought." (Spectator) Cleveland

This childhood began in eastern Russia in 1791; part of it was spent on large estates and the rest in a provincial town

Albert I, king of the Belgians

MacDonnell, J. de C. Life of His Majesty Albert, king of the Belgians. '15 Stokes $1 92

"Mr MacDonnell, who writes frankly as a Royalist and a Roman Catholic, has had the advantage of a residence in Brussels, and we gather that his work was submitted to the King and passed by him for publication." Spectator 114:547

"Tho fragmentary and quite eulogistic, the book is a good one of the popular kind. No index." A. L. A. bkl.

Alcott, Louisa May

Cheney, Mrs E. L., ed. Louisa May Alcott; her life, letters and journals. 1900 Little $1.50 92

"Home life of the author of 'Little women,' her experiences as an army nurse, struggles as an author, etc." (N.Y. state lib.) A. L. A.

See also "Louisa May Alcott, dreamer and worker," by Belle Moses, 1909, Appleton, $1.35, written especially for girls, which will also interest many adults

Aldrich, Thomas Bailey

Greenslet, Ferris. Life of Thomas Bailey Aldrich. il '08 Houghton $3.50 92

"Mr Greenslet has brought to his work delicacy and reticence, together with a skill in words that reproduces something of the charm of one who made refinement the end of all his labor. He tells just enough of the child's surroundings at Portsmouth, of the clerk and youthful editor in New York; he follows the man sympathetically thru his Boston years of prosperous toil and golden ease, to the honored close. It is a happy life gracefully told." (Condensed from Nation)

There is abundant proof of his pleasant humor in these pages. Aldrich's letters are full of it. He is not an artificial 'literary' letter-writer; his merit is that he is natural, spontaneous and always light of wit. 'I was fifty-nine yesterday,' he writes. 'It is unpleasant to be fifty-nine; but it would be unpleasant not to be, having got started.' (Athenaeum) Pittsburgh

Alexandra Feodorovna, ex-czarina of Russia

Mouchanow, Marfa. My empress. '18 Lane $2.50 92

"Twenty-three years of intimate life with the empress of all the Russias from her marriage to the day of her exile." Subtitle

Pictures the Czarina as wife, mother and empress. Does not touch on political affairs

Alexander the Great

Wheeler, B. I. Alexander the Great; the merging of the East and West in universal history. (Heroes of the nations) 1900 Putnam $1.50 92

"Story of Alexander's aims and achievements told with considerable detail and admirable clearness." (Nation) A. L. A.

See also Hogarth's "Philip and Alexander of Macedon"

Alfred the Great

Besant, Sir Walter. Story of King Alfred. (Library of useful stories) '01 Appleton 50c 92

"Best brief history of the career of Alfred and the position of England in the 9th century." (Athenaeum) A. L. A.

Plummer, Charles. Life and times of Alfred the Great. (Ford lectures) '02 Oxford $2 92

Appendix: Sermon on the death of Queen Victoria

Bibliography, pref. p10-11

"Tells everything known about Alfred, with abundant references to previous discussions of debatable matters and acute comments on all points of controversy." (Nation) A. L. A.

See also B. A. Lees' scholarly study, based largely on primary sources, published by Putnam, 1915, $1.90

Allier, Roger

Allier, Raoul, and Allier, Mrs Raoul. Roger Allier; tr. by H. H. King. '19 Association press $1.25 92

"This volume is a family book, not intended for publicity, written to preserve the memory of a young man, Roger Allier, a subaltern in the Chasseurs Alpins, who in the first year of this great war, with quiet heroism, laid down his life for France. The book is by his father, a professor of Protestant theology, in Paris. . . . The great interest of the book lies in the fact that it vividly sets forth the moral preparation which made this youth and his fellows able to check the flood of German aggression in the first two months of the war." Theodore Roosevelt in Introduction

Amiel, Henri Frédéric

Journal intime; tr. with introd. by Mrs Humphry Ward. new ed '15 Macmillan $1.50 92

"Amiel has been much compared with Obermann and Maurice de Guérin, but he is far nearer to us than either. . . . There was in Amiel that deeper seriousness which we characterize by the word Puritan. It is for that type of religious mind, of which there are very many among English speaking peoples, even tho they disavow the name, that the book will have the strongest attraction." (Nation) Pittsburgh

Andersen, Hans Christian

Story of my life. '71 Houghton $1.25 92

"The absolute candor with which Andersen lays bare his soul, the complete intentional or unintentional self-revelation, gives a psychological value to the book which no mere literary grace could bestow. . . . Andersen remained, until the day of his death, a child. His innocence was more than virginal; his unworldliness simply inconceivable. . . . He conceived of his life as a fairy-tale. . . . The feeling of the marvellous pervades the book from beginning to end." (H. H. Boyesen) Pittsburgh

The autobiography brings the narrative down to 1869. An account of his later years will be found in Bain's "Hans Christian Andersen," published by Dodd and now out of print.

Antin, Mary

Promised land. '12 Houghton $2 92

Appeared in the Atlantic monthly, vii8-9, October 1911 to April 1912

"Autobiography of an immigrant who was born less than thirty years ago (1912) in Polotzk, Russia, a town in the Jewish pale, and spent her childhood there. Her family being driven by the pressure of poverty to immigrate, when she was twelve years old she was brought to America, where she made a brilliant progress thru the public schools of Boston and thru Barnard College. The story of her life is absorbing in its human significance, remarkable for its literary distinction and convincingly hopeful in its view of the immigrant problem in America." Pittsburg

Arbly, Mme Frances (Burney) d'

Diary and letters (1778-1840) with notes by W. C. Ward, and prefaced by Lord Macaulay's essay. 3v (Chandos classics) Warne $2.80 92

"Fanny Burney's social advantages were great and the years of intercourse with brilliant people gave her unusual knowledge of the world. Shortly after the publication of 'Evelina,' she became keeper of the robes to Queen Charlotte. Her 'Diary and letters' gives us one of the best historical pictures of that time, the everyday life at court, King George III's increasing insanity, and her own story of discomfort in uncongenial companionship.

"As a diarist Miss Burney is with Pepys and Evelyn, as a letter writer with Walpole and Chesterfield. And unlike all of these, except Horace, she is a novelist as well." (George Saintsbury)

Some readers may prefer the selections from her diary and other writings, edited by L. B. Seeley and entitled 'Fanny Burney and her friends.' Pittsburg

Temporarily out of print

Another delightfully written book is Constance Hill's "Fanny Burney at the court of Queen Charlotte," 1912, Lane, $5

Arnold, Benedict

Stimson, F. J. (J. S. of Dale, pseud.) My story; being the memoirs of Benedict Arnold. il '17 Scribner $2 92

"Author and publisher have given to this book every mark of a genuine autobiographical work, yet have made no pretense that it is other than a work of fiction. It purports to be the life story of Benedict Arnold, written by his own hand, with the purpose of justifying his career in the eyes of the British king. Events of his public and private life are closely followed." Book rev. digest

"Tho presented in the guise of a novel, one of the most important as well as most graphic historical books of the year, (1917)." Springfield Republican, November 18, 1917

Arnold, Matthew

Letters, 1848-88; ed. by G. W. E. Russell. 1900 Macmillan $2.25 92

"The greater part of these letters are addressed to the members of the family, whence their perfect frankness and absence of posing. The early letters to his elder sister are full of his reading and political views. After his marriage they give us many details of his work and wanderings in inspecting schools. Still later his visits to the continent give occasion for descriptions of places and vivacious sketches of adventure. The playfulness and tenderness of his nature are revealed in his allusions to his children. Above all the letters contribute toward an appreciation of Arnold's character, opinions and literary work.

"These letters are a gift of sunshine to the world. . . . In his published writings there were at times a not unbecoming hauteur, a happy malice of the pen, and even something which, while really dexterity in saying things difficult to utter, might be mistaken for affectation. In these letters a more intimate side of his character is revealed to the public; they are absolutely simple and real; wholly free from strain; rich in the temper of enjoyment; unflinching in the spirit of genuine affection; and behind their kindness and their brightness we can discern strength, and even something of unostentatious heroism; loyalty to duty; loyalty to truth; loyalty to an ideal of life." (Edward Dowden) Pittsburgh

Arnold, Thomas, and Arnold, Matthew

Fitch, J. G. Thomas and Matthew Arnold and their influence on English education. (Great educators) '97 Scribner $1.25 92

"The author of this biography was a colleague of Matthew Arnold in educational work, and he aims to present those characteristics of both father and son which are of special interest to teachers." Pittsburgh

Audubon, John James

Life and adventures of Audubon the naturalist; ed. by Robert Buchanan. (Everyman's library) '13 Dutton 70c; lib. binding 90c 92

Consists chiefly of extracts from his diary. Bibliography of Robert Buchanan, p13; bibliography of John James Audubon, p13

"Contains an introduction by John Burroughs in which he speaks of Audubon as 'One of the most striking figures in our history, while the service he has rendered to ornithology surpasses perhaps the work of any other one man who ever lived.'" Pratt quarterly

Audubon, Mrs L. B. Life of John James Audubon the naturalist. (American men of energy) 1900 Putnam $1.50 92

Short biography written in 1867

Herrick, F. H. Audubon the naturalist; a history of his life and time. 2v il '17 Appleton $7.50 92

Bibliography, 2:401-56

Appendix contains many hitherto unpublished documents

"A notable biography containing a wealth of interesting new material, particularly on Audubon's boyhood in France and experiences in the West. Combines scholarliness with a popular style and is enhanced by many fine illustrations. The author is professor of biology at Western Reserve university and is himself an authority on ornithology." Cleveland

Austen, Jane

Austen-Leigh, William, and R. A. Jane Austen, her life and letters; a family record. il '13 Dutton $3.50 92

Works referred to, p10; Chronology of Jane Austen's life, p13-15; Bibliography, p421-8

"By the son and grandson of James Edward Austen-Leigh, a nephew of Jane Austen and author of the memoir published in 1869. (Macmillan, 1906, Eversley series). The present work is a careful rearrangement of her letters with connecting comment and explanation and some added material on her social and family life." Cleveland

Cornish, F. W. Jane Austen. (English men of letters) '13 Macmillan $1 92

"The two biographical chapters are excellent, saying neatly and concisely all that need be said. The comments are to the point; those devoted to the novels are apt in description and criticism, and include some timely corrections of popular misconceptions. The last chapter is somewhat disappointing in that it gives no details of the style, which is surely a chief merit of the novels." (Condensed from Athenaeum) Pittsburgh

Smith, Goldwin. Life of Jane Austen. (Great writers) '90 Scribner $1.40 92

Bibliography, apx. p1-5

"The first and best chapter contains an excellent sketch of Jane Austen's life; the other chapters analyze her novels with delicate taste and fine critical faculty." (Athenaeum) Pittsburgh

Avary, Mrs Myrta Lockett, ed.

A Virginia girl in the Civil war, 1861-65. '03 Appleton $1.50 92

"The thrilling experiences of the young wife of a Confederate officer related dramatically and with humor. As interesting as a novel in its true account of adventures and privations, but it is nevertheless a part of the intimate material which makes a background for scholarly history of the period." Cleveland

Bagehot, Walter

Barrington, Mrs E. I. W. Life of Walter Bagehot. '14 Longmans $4 92

"Life of a distinguished English banker, economist, journalist, and man of letters. Interesting as a revelation of the brilliant and attractive personality which lay hidden beneath the seriousness of his public career." Pittsburgh

"A delightful and truly interpretive, if over-discursive biography of the English economist and journalist of whom President Wilson wrote in 1905, 'He had social imagination. For minds with this gift of sight, there is a quick way opened to the heart of things. His fame is singularly disproportionate to his charm.'" Cleveland

Baldwin, William Henry, jr.

Brooks, J. G. American citizen. il '10 Houghton $1.75 92

"Inspiring character study of a sincere, large-hearted railroad official, who succeeded in business yet maintained his moral integrity and subordinated big private enterprises to active interest in the race problem and social reform." (N.Y. state lib.) A. L. A. sup.

Balzac, Honoré de

Sanders, M. F. Honoré de Balzac: his life and writings. '14 Lane $1.50 92

"The Nation says of the first edition (Dodd, 1905), 'In Miss Sanders' work is presented, for the first time, an exhaustive account of Balzac's life. The story is told simply, directly, with sympathy, and not infrequent humor.' A satisfactory reprint at half the price, with the type somewhat more compact, but readable, and the number of illustrations increased from four to nine." A. L. A. bkl.

Bancroft, Mrs Elizabeth (Davis)

Bancroft, Hubert Howe

Retrospection, political and personal. 3d ed rev '12 Bancroft co. $2 92

"Contains much more than the recollections of a long and active life, giving the author's fearless and often caustic comment on practically every matter of vital concern to the country—specially those problems connected with the West, past and present. His early life in Ohio, migration to California, accumulation of the Bancroft library and writing of his historical works comprise the more personal chapters. Written without regard to matters of style and somewhat garrulous, it is nevertheless full of interest for students of United States history and for any reader interested in Pacific coast matters." A. L. A. bkl.

"As a work of history or of contemporaneous critical value no very high rank can be given to this 'Retrospection' from Mr Bancroft's pen. But as a human document, as impressionistic testimony, the book has a value of its own, coming as it does from a man who reached San Francisco in 1852—from an eye-witness of events in California thru six decades." "Dr. Brandes, who (1910) is one of the foremost of living critics, gives here a frank and intimate revelation of the unfolding of his intellectual life, to his thirtieth year and the shaping of his ideas about modern literature which he has enforced with so much impressiveness in his books. The vigor and vitality which characterize his treatment of other writers are equally characteristic of this account of his own career. His reminiscent pages throw interesting light on contemporary happenings in the sixties as well as on famous men, among them Ibsen, Björnson, Taine, Renan and Mill, with whose friendship the young critic was honored." Gaskell, Mrs E. S. Life of Charlotte Brontë; with introd. and notes by C. K. Shorter. 1900 Harper $1.60 92

"Best edition of the standard biography."

(Johnston) A. L. A.

"In the whole of English biographical literature there is no book that can compare in widespread interest with the 'Life of Charlotte Brontë' by Mrs Gaskell. . . . As far as mere readers are concerned, it may indeed claim its hundreds as against the tens of intrinsically more important rivals. Mrs Gaskell was herself a popular novelist, who commanded a very wide audience. She brought to bear upon the biography of Charlotte Brontë all those literary gifts which had made the charm of her seven volumes of romance. And these gifts were employed upon a romance of real life, not less fascinating than anything which imagination could have furnished. . . . It is quite certain that Charlotte Brontë would not stand on so splendid a pedestal today but for the single-minded devotion of her accomplished biographer." (Clement K. Shorter)

"A loving hand has traced the outline of a very human life, and the honesty, the uncompromising truthfulness, of the subject has entered into the disposition of the biographer. . . . We welcome this 'Life and letters' as not only a very notable contribution to the small class of really worthy American biographies, but as the prolongation of one of the finest influences that have been moulding American character, especially in the field of spiritual development. . . . The letters which Brooks wrote are very expressive of a certain side of his nature, that sunny side which made so large a part of his greatness, but they rarely are more than superficial disclosures of his temperament. . . . Dr Allen . . . looked for Brooks in his sermons, and there he found him." (Atlantic monthly, 1901) Pittsburgh

Hobson, J. A. Richard Cobden, the international man. il '19 Holt $5 92

"By shifting the emphasis from Cobden's early and best known activities in connection with the repeal of the Corn laws to his later application of his principle of free trade to foreign affairs during the period from the opening of the Crimean war to the close of the American Civil war, Mr Hobson has given us a new view of the subject, with a modern attitude and expression. The timeliness of the book is astonishing. It is as if the spirit of Cobden had returned to take his place beside Lowes Dickinson and Bertrand Russell.

Mr Hobson was fortunate in having new documents to supplement those of which Lord Morley made such conscientious use. The correspondence with Mr Richard, of the Peace society, and that with Charles Sumner occupy most of the present volume." R. M. Lovett in Dial 66:399

The material of her story is family life in a poor Jewish quarter, her experiences as a wage-earner, and the influence on her life of the Henry Street Settlement and the Presbyterian hospital; her art is that of the born storyteller with a feeling for atmosphere and shades of character and for dialogue as the expression of character, all of which put her book in a different class from many of these immigrant autobiographies." Conrad, Joseph

Personal record. '12 Harper $1.50 92

"Joseph Conrad, born with a much longer and less easily pronounceable name, is a native of Kiev, Russia. He is of a distinguished family which has suffered bitterly for its patriotism. Till the age of thirty-six he followed the sea; then, he knows not why, he sat down to write a novel, 'Almayer's folly.' It was followed by others and he is now acknowledged one of the first of English writers. His autobiography is quite unlike any other that was ever written. Its discursiveness and its chronological chaos are hardly to be described. It is not less full of charm than the rest of his beautiful, cleanly modeled prose; it is richer than some of his work in humor. Above all, it compels us to see and feel things as an intensely recipient and richly gifted spirit has seen them." (Condensed from Outlook [London] 1912) Pittsburgh

"An excellent life, much fuller in biographical detail than the sketch by Dimitri Merejkowski, and remarkable from the fact that it mirrors both Dostoevskii's weakness and greatness without trying to fit him to a precise formula, as does the former critic's estimate. Soloviev recognizes that Dostoevskii's neurotic temperament led him into many extremes and paradoxes, but is convinced that the great writer's belief in the Russian masses with their simplicity, faith and hunger for truth, is the cornerstone of his philosophy. The book is of greater value on the side of Dostoevskii's personality and attitude toward life in general and the Russia of his day than as a literary criticism." Cleveland

Dowden, Edward

Letters of Edward Dowden and his correspondents. il '14 Dutton $3 92

Biographical note, p395-7

"Letters covering fifty years (1859-1913) of the life of the Irish critic of whom it is said that 'no one of his time surpassed in the power of getting at the structural idea of any imaginative work.' Commenting on Dowden's entire elimination of his personality in his critical work, his friend W. K. Magee says, 'It is this missing personal element in his writings that these letters come to supply.' However they include also much interesting formal literary judgment and criticism. Some of the most delightful letters are to Edmund Gosse and John Burroughs." Cleveland

"A sympathetic, enlightening biography and discussion of the military successes of Marshal Foch, intended for the general reader." Brooklyn

Laughlin, C. E. Foch the man; a life of the supreme commander of the allied armies. il '18 Revell $1 92

"A popular compact summary of the main events in the public life of Marshal Foch from his boyhood to his triumph as leader of the allied armies. Descriptions of places and peoples among which he lived add color to the narrative which shows his essential greatness of character. Interesting to the general reader. Based largely on a recent French biography written by René Puaux. 'General Foch, an appreciation' by Robert Matteson Johnston (Houghton 1918, $1) is a briefer study which acquaints one with the principles of service and military teachings of Foch, though not in a technical way, still giving an appreciation of the soldierly qualities added to those of the man." Francis of Assisi, Saint

Little flowers of St Francis; bound with "The Mirror of perfection" and Bonaventura's "Life of St Francis." (Everyman's lib.) Dutton 70c; lib. binding 90c 92

"This literary gem relates the life of Francis, his companions and disciples, as it appeared to the popular imagination at the beginning of the fourteenth century. . . . That which gives these stories an inestimable worth is what for want of a better term we might call their atmosphere. They are legendary, worked over, exaggerated, false even, if you please, but they give us with a vivacity and intensity of coloring something that we shall search for in vain elsewhere—the surroundings in which St Francis lived. More than any other biography the Fioretti transport us to Umbria, to the mountains of the March of Anconia; they make us visit the hermitages, and mingle with the life, half childlike, half angelic, which was that of their inhabitants. . . . In default of accuracy of detail, the incidents which are related here contain a higher truth—their tone is true. Here are words that were never uttered, acts that never took place, but the soul and the heart of the early Franciscans were surely what they are depicted here." (Paul Sabatier) Pittsburgh

Cuthbert, Father. Life of St Francis of Assisi. il '12 Longmans $2.50 92

Sources of our knowledge of St Francis, p47-46

"A clear, direct narrative by a devout Roman Catholic scholar. Based on careful research, it adds newly discovered data to the investigations of Sabatier and other biographers, and is designed for serious-minded students who desire an accurate, unadorned account of St. Francis' life, work and influence on his age, rather than a beautiful romance." A. L. A. bkl.

Franklin, Benjamin

Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin; the unmutilated and correct version, comp. and ed. with notes by John Bigelow. '12 Putnam $1.50 92

"Not only one of the most widely read and most readable books in our language, but has had the distinction of enriching the literature of nearly every other." (John Bigelow) A. L. A.

"The style of this work is inimitable; it is as simple, direct, idiomatic as Bunyan's." It is the straightforward life-story of a typically American character endowed with the great powers developed by self-education, who exerted vast influence as a citizen and statesman for his own day and for the future of his country." Bruce, W. C. Benjamin Franklin self-revealed. 2v '17 Putnam $6 92

"A biography which characterizes Franklin, his moral standing, as philanthropist, his family relations, his European friends, as a man of business, a man of science, statesman and writer. It is critical and accurate, citing much from Franklin's own writings. It received the thousand dollar Pulitzer prize offered by Columbia university for the best biography of the year [1917] teaching patriotic and unselfish service to the people." A. L. A. bkl.

Ford, P. L. Many-sided Franklin. '99 Century $3 92

"Emphasizes the many-sidedness of Franklin's genius by treating in each chapter a separate phase of his varied activity. The printer, the journalist, the scientist, the diplomat, the administrator, the family man, the lover, and the friend are in turn set before the reader, and the effect produced is more lifelike than that of the usual chronological narrative.

Franklin's 'Autobiography' ends at the beginning of his career as a diplomatist. In the 'Life of Benjamin Franklin' edited by John Bigelow the 'Autobiography' is continued, from Franklin's correspondence and other writings, to the time of his death." Pittsburgh

Bibliography and notes, p355-61

"The author, who has written a good life of Schiller and an excellent history of German literature, says: 'Every scholar has his own
Dante, his own Shakespeare and his own Goethe. This book represents my Goethe after nearly forty years of university teaching.'

The first part of the volume consists of a short biography, the second part, Studies and appreciations, deals in several independent monographs with the larger and more memorable aspects of Goethe's life work. The biography is outspoken and interesting but will not take the place of Lewes' fascinating life of Goethe in English, nor of the English translations of the scholarly and complete German biographies by Bielowsky and Düntzer." Cleveland in a home where the most austere Puritanism prevailed; of his father, a scientist of distinction, devoted first of all to the religious bringing boy's individuality, and the final break between father and son, between the rigid religion of the past and the liberality of the present, which sacrificed neither the love of the father nor the respect of the son. Written with great charm, with delicacy of feeling, poetic insight, and not a little humor." A. L. A. bkl.

Grant, Ulysses Simpson

Personal memoirs. 2d ed 2v '95 Century 92

"Covers the course of the author's life down to the close of the Civil war. When one considers that the writer was a man of action, altogether without experience in literary work, one is surprised at the remarkable skill with which the narrative is written. The sentences often have the same pithy directness and brevity that marked his dispatches from the field of battle. As a general he mastered details but was not overwhelmed by them; so here, he sees the whole field and leads the reader easily along from one principal event to another. The naive simplicity and lack of affectation so characteristic of the author are noticeable features of the work." (Larned's Literature of American history)

[This book] not only presents the message Lord Grey desired to be conveyed to the English people but recreates for us the singularly gentle, lovable personality of the man. A great lover of human kind, an active exponent of genuine democracy, he wanted the idea of industrial democracy to penetrate the national consciousness. . . . His religion was a deep and secret thing unhampered by sect or creed. Loving England, he longed for a true imperial unity and worked to that end. Lives of Lord Herbert of Cherbury and Thomas Ellwood; with essays by W. D. Howells. (Choice autobiographies) '77 Houghton $1.15 92

"The autobiography of Lord Herbert is of a style so charming, and of a manner and matter so singularly characteristic of his order, age and nation, that one might easily believe it written by some skillful student of the period. . . . As you read, you cannot help thinking . . . that Thackeray himself could not have done it better if he had been minded to portray a gentleman of the first James' time. Yet this picture, so frank, so boldly colored, so full of the very life of a young English noble, is one of the most remarkable instances of self-portraiture in any language. . . . A rare sincerity marks the whole memoir, and gives it the grace of an antique simplicity. . . . Herbert, not only as James' ambassador to Louis XIII, but as a soldier of fortune in the Low countries, and a peaceful traveler in Italy, saw everything that was best worth seeing in the Europe of his day." Howells, William Dean

Years of my youth. '16 Harper $2 92

"In these reminiscences written in his eightieth year, Mr Howells passes quickly from the boyhood which he describes in 'A boy's town' to his young manhood as a printer and journalist in Ohio, which he describes in detail, closing with his appointment to the consulate in Venice in 1861. 'It is the story of a man's youth told with charm from the ripe viewpoint of an age that has never lost touch with what is young and growing and beautiful.'" (N.Y. Times) Cleveland

"As a picture of Ohio life in the '40's and '50's it is both readable and valuable." N.Y. state lib.

Hudson, William Henry

Far away and long ago; a history of my early life. '18 Dutton $2.50 92

"The romantic childhood of an English naturalist who was brought up on the Argentine pampas in the days of the tyrant Rosas. The grotesque natives, the plant and animal life, the picturesque squalor of Buenos Aires in the forties, and the English family in the midst of such unusual surroundings are exquisitely pictured." A. L. A. bkl.

"One is reluctant to apply to Mr Hudson's book those terms of praise which are bestowed upon literary and artistic merit, though needless to say it possesses both. One does not want to recommend it as a book so much as to greet it as a person, and not the clipped and imperfect person of ordinary autobiography, but the whole and complete person whom we meet rarely enough in life or in literature." Hunt, Leigh

Autobiography of Leigh Hunt, with reminiscences of friends and contemporaries; ed. by Roger Ingpen. 2v '03 Dutton $7.50 92

"It is the book of an old man, ripe, tender, sensitive, human,—an old man striving, with an honesty sometimes pathetic, always convincing and engaging, to tell the truth, to correct his first impressions, to pay a tribute of love and admiration to his friends, to do justice to those who called themselves his enemies. . . . The story of his connection with Shelley and Keats . . . is a story which can never fail of its appeal. . . . The book is a human book; it neither dogmatizes over life nor plays with it." (Academy, 1903)

"I have just finished your 'Autobiography' which has been most pleasantly occupying my leisure these three days. . . . I call this an excellent good book, by far the best of the autobiographic kind I remember to have read in the English language; and indeed except it be Boswell's of Johnson, I do not know where we have such a picture drawn of a human life." Una Mary; the inner life of a child. '14 Scribner $1.25 92

Appeared in part in Scribner's magazine, v56, August to October, 1914

"This is the true story of the inner life of my childhood. . . . My one object in writing has been the hope that some of my readers might say, 'I remember I felt so too,' the hope that they might become vividly conscious of their own half forgotten points of view as children, with their tragedies, bewilderments, and joys." Preface

Huss, John

Schaff, D. S. John Huss, his life, teachings and death, after five hundred years. il '15 Scribner $2.50 92

"A fairminded and readable life of the great reformer, making no pretensions to original research, but valuable to scholars for its careful study of available sources, its summary of recent views, and its references to the best original material. Preferable for the general reader, to Lutzuow's standard life of Huss, which is chiefly significant as the work of a compatriot and as an expression of national sentiment." (A. L. A. bkl.) Cleveland

Gives pictures of their life in Geneva, Newport and Cambridge, and incidental glimpses of notable people—La Farge, Hunt, Norton, Childs, Emerson and others. Written in the characteristic manner of the earlier volume and illustrated from drawings made by William James in the early part of his career." Pittsburgh

Many interesting letters of William James written during the Civil war are included."

A small boy and others. il '13 Scribner $2.50 92

"Starting avowedly with the purpose of placing together some particulars of the early life of William James, the writer soon found his own boyish figure so unavoidably in the foreground that he gave up the attempt to sketch his brother's life and confines himself chiefly to the memories and impressions of his own boyhood viewed thru an intervening medium of fifty years and more. The most vital part of the world he reconstructs is a New York now vanished. Later the background is changed to London and then to France, which he sees with the glamor of childhood. The book is written in his best and most characteristic manner." Pittsburgh

Story of my heart; my autobiography. '98 Longmans $1.25 92

"English writer (1848-87), best known for his descriptions of nature.

'A writer of a perfectly original type, and at the same time intensely English . . . he is unparalleled, unless by Shelley, for the eloquent expression of the mere rapture of living, of the joy of existence in fresh air and clear light amid lovely landscape. . . . 'The story of my heart' . . . idealizes the feelings and yearnings of his youth; it is hardly what the lad really thought, but embodies all he was to think when he should have intellectually come to man's estate. The one fixed point in it is its intense pantheism.'" (Dictionary of national biography) Pittsburgh

"Exhaustive, scholarly biography, the most complete and critical in English." A. L. A. sup.

"Mr Lang's book is not written in the soothing spirit of leisurely research. It has a vivacity inspired by the two master passions of literature, love of the subject as a vital issue, and a strong objection, both temperamental and reasoned, to the author who has most lately treated it (Anatole France). . . . Mr Lang's own conception of Jeanne is very simple and uncompromising: she was gifted with 'genius which should be the marvel of the world while the world stands'; she was not only brave, saintly and a natural leader of men, but of a high intelligence. . . . He will have nothing to do with the theory of clerical inspiration; he holds that . . . she was as far as possible from the ordinary type of the mystic or hysteric." (Nation, 1909) Pittsburgh

"The book is indeed unique. The story itself and the years of effort which have made its telling possible, the personality which it reveals, and the creation of that personality,— these are things which seem little short of miraculous. The narrative of a young woman who has been deaf and blind from infancy is written in a style which is not only idiomatic, but individual and rhythmical. As one reads, one forgets to make allowances for limitations which are apt to slip out of sight, until a chance phrase recalls one with a start to the realization that the mind which deals so freely and normally with the ordinary factors of human life dwells forever in silence and the dark."

"Miss Calhoun went to Europe as a girl and made a name for herself on the stage, playing Shakesperian parts in both England and France. In 1903 she married Prince Lazarovich-Hrebelianovich of Serbia and retired from the stage to devote herself to her husband's work in bettering the condition of his people. This book of reminiscences is devoted almost wholly to her stage experiences and to memories of the men and women it was her good fortune to meet." Book rev. digest

Lear, Edward

Letters to Chichester Fortescue, lord Carlingford and Frances, countess Waldegrave; ed. by Lady Strachey. '08 Duffield $3.50 92

"Lear (1812-1888) is known chiefly as the author of the 'Book of nonsense,' but he was a considerable water-color artist as well, and a man of interesting personality, as is shown in this collection of letters to his nearest friends. They were written from 1849-1864, most of which time he spent on the continent.

'Lively and jolly letters. . . . Their entertaining quality is greatly augmented by the countless caricatures and odd bits of drawing with which he was wont to adorn his letters. The book is exactly of the kind that one can pick up from a shelf in an odd moment of spare time and dip into here and there with enjoyment.' (Outlook, 1908) Pittsburgh

Lloyd, Henry Demarest

"The historian who in the future engages in the task of tracing the beginnings of the movement which we now call the 'social unrest' will find one great landmark to guide him, and that will be Lloyd's work, 'Wealth against commonwealth' which appeared in 1894. The book was the first—and even today, may, perhaps fairly be called the greatest specimen of the 'literature of exposure' in this country. . . . For this reason his biography . . . ought to be read by all those who are fighting today for the common good." Nation 94:618

"Of the biography which is one of the most important sources of history the United States as yet has very little. In England this kind of biography is abundant and of immense importance. . . . A biography of this character and usefulness to the historian of the United States during the era when Big Business was coming into existence and into control, and one moreover which is worthy to rank with the standard English biographies, is the 'Life of Henry Demarest Lloyd.' It is too soon to estimate Lloyd's part in the awakening of the public conscience to the evils of the individualistic system under which the United States reached its great material development of the nineteenth century. It is therefore of special importance to have a true picture of the man as reflected in his private letters, as well as in his published writings. It is of great value to the future historian to be able to ascertain how men regarded the trusts when they first came into existence, and what forces were at work to arouse sympathy for the workers and to awaken the first consciousness of the class problems which the Americans used to imagine could never arise in the new world." "A human document of unusual interest. Mill, a noble spirit educated by a narrow-minded pedant, shut off from all normal contact, developed an egotism that makes this book so completely an autobiography that besides his father and his wife he seems to exist alone in a world of which he was both center and circumference." From 1718 to 1739, Lady Montagu was one of the leaders in English society, well known to all the wits of the time. She accompanied her husband on his embassy to Turkey, and the letters written during this time are her best. Her sprightliness and the easy elegance of her style, her pungent wit and shrewd observations make the letters justly famous. Recollections. 2v '17 Macmillan $7.50 92

"A happy combination of autobiography, philosophical comment, literary appreciation and personal character-sketching. Viscount Morley had an extraordinary talent for friendship. Mill, Meredith, Joseph Chamberlain, Parnell Sir Alfred Lyall and Frederic Harrison—these are but samples to show his range of association. Good stories are not taboo, and piquant sayings star many a page. Writing with entire freedom of the political events of England of thirty years past, in which he played so worthy a part as chief secretary for Ireland and as secretary of state for India, Morley betrays no secrets, records no bitter verdicts. No one can lay down these 'Recollections' without feeling that he has been in contact with something large and fine." (Condensed from Nation, 1917) Pittsburgh

"No work of the kind in the world's literature can be compared to Pepys' 'Diary' . . . It paints the official and private circles in which the author moved, the course of public affairs, the humours of social life, with no less truth and frankness than it reveals the author himself. It is by far the most valuable document extant for the understanding of the times; better than all the histories and all the comedies. It seems an unequalled piece of irony that the supreme piece of workmanship in its way and the most lucid mirror of its age should be the performance of an ordinary citizen who had not

List of speeches delivered by William Pitt, v2, p335-51; Bibliography, v2, p352-68

The only complete and adequate biography in English, as Lord Rosebery's admirable work ended before Pitt's first ministry

"Mr Williams has equipped himself for his task by years of study, with the result that we have at last a really worthy biography of an English writer. . . . The most original work in the book is that which throws light on Pitt's actual methods as the greatest of war ministers, on the general conditions of public offices in the eighteenth century, and on the private and home life of Chatham. . . . Mr Williams is in fact a better biographer than historian, and when Pitt's life becomes a part of world politics, the narrative occasionally loses itself in details. The net effect . . . is not to . . . paint a new picture of Chatham, but rather to fill in the details of the outline which Macaulay drew for all time." (Saturday rev., 1913) Pittsburgh

Shaler, Nathaniel Southgate

Autobiography; with a supplementary memoir by his wife. il '09 Houghton $4.50 92

"Professor Shaler's work and eminence as a scientist, his share in the advance of scientific education, his geological investigations and other activities are presented, but are subordinated to the frank, inspiring study of his big, intensely human personality. Of additional interest are the portrayal of Louis Agassiz, his master and friend, and the picture of Civil war conditions in Kentucky." N.Y. state lib.

"A distinct contribution to the literature of scientific investigation in this country." A. L. A. sup.

Sharp, William

Sharp, Mrs. E. S. William Sharp (Fiona Macleod); a memoir. 2v '12 Duffield $4 92

"Record of an interesting personality, largely autobiographic, being from letters and diaries with quotations from his books. Criticisms and comments are chiefly from letters of noted men, Mrs Sharp's part being the explanation of her husband's 'dual nature' and its literary expression in the works of Fiona Macleod." N.Y. state lib.

Shaw, Anna Howard

Story of a pioneer. il '15 Harper $2 92

"In collaboration with Miss Elizabeth Jordan, the president [1915] of the National American woman suffrage association here tells the inspiring story of her life from her strenuous youth in the Michigan 'back woods' of fifty years ago, thru her career as Methodist preacher, ordained minister, teacher, doctor, lecturer and suffrage worker and leader. Dr Shaw writes as she speaks, straightforwardly and with keen observation, humor and a rich fund of anecdote." Cleveland

Shaw, George Bernard

Chesterton, G. K. George Bernard Shaw. '09 Lane $1.50 92

Henderson, Archibald. George Bernard Shaw, his life and works. '18 Boni & Livright $1.50 92

"A Boswellian biography, authorized by Mr

Shaw, who has contributed to it what he calls 'a mass of unceremonious and irresponsible autobiography.' Despite the questionable taste of this and the extreme seriousness of the biographer, the book is a detailed and accurate account of the various phases of art, economics and literature in which Mr Shaw has interested himself, and of the real and sincere work he has done. Thirty-three illustrations and numerous facsimiles in the text, and genealogical chart of the Shaw family." A. L. A. bkl.

Sheehan, Patrick Augustine

Heuser, H. J. Canon Sheehan of Doneraile. il '17 Longmans $3.50 92

"The biography of a Catholic priest in the south of Ireland who was an ardent Irishman, a well-liked pastor and a frequent author. Written by a fellow priest and his editor, his religious activities and literary merit are somewhat over-stressed, so that the book will hold interest chiefly for Catholic readers." A. L. A. bkl.

"He died in 1913. His great work was his interpretation of modern Irish life thru fiction. Intensely devoted to his native land and full of admiration for the virtues of its sturdy sons, yet keenly critical of their vices, he was able to write stories which made the people live for their readers." Springfield Republican

Shelley, Percy Bysshe

Dowden, Edward. Life of Percy Bysshe Shelley. 2v '86 Scribner $6 92

"He has condensed the old Shelley papers by Hogg, Peacock, Trelawney, Medwin, Hunt, Lady Shelley, Stockdale, and other lesser writers, the correspondence and diaries of Godwin, and the modern investigations of Garnett, Rossetti, Forman, and Shelley students of less note; and he has amplified the biography constructed from these sources by manuscript papers of the Shelley family and others . . . The work is necessarily henceforth the authority for the facts of Shelley's career. It is in a strict sense a biography. It deals with the events of his life, and touches only incidentally and briefly his works and genius, his contemporaries, and the history of his times." (Nation, 1887) Pittsburgh

"The style of the narrative becomes monotonous, but the chronicle successfully reproduces the homely, kindly life in a Wisconsin farm home and neighborhood, thirty or forty years ago." Cleveland

Country chronicle. il '16 Century $1.75 92

"Pictures of life in a Wisconsin village, in the '70s, as seen thru the eyes of a boy of ten. The boy's parents, school companions, and the odd characters of the community are vividly portrayed, and we witness among other events a church sociable, a temperance lecture, a 'boiling down,' and an old fashioned country dance." Sidney, Sir Philip

Bourne, H. R. F. Sir Philip Sidney: type of English chivalry in the Elizabethan age. (Heroes of the nations) '91 Putnam $1.50 92

List of principal authorities, pp. 10.

"Mr Fox Bourne's claim to write about Sidney is well established. His original 'Memoir of Sir Philip Sidney' is among the best things of its kind. Critics have rejoiced . . . to throw it in the teeth of succeeding commentators, and, in a word, the first serious rival of Mr Fox Bourne A. D. '62 is Mr Fox Bourne A. D. '92. The thirty years have perhaps shed as much light on the period of Sidney as on any other in literature. And the light has so shone on Mr Bourne that he tells his story afresh, disowning . . . certain hot errors of his youthful blood. . . . In a marked degree he succeeds in picturing to us the possibilities of noble boyhood and manhood in the Elizabethan days. But it is Sidney for Sidney's sake who has our interest and attention thruout the volume." (Athenaeum, 1892) Pittsburgh

'Those who would like to trace Sill's long struggle between faith and doubt—a struggle typical of his period—of his wide and discriminating reading, or his self-effacing zeal as a teacher, or his fine disregard for contemporary fame as a writer, or his great and true magnanimity as a man—must read all of Mr Parker's book.' Stanhope, Lady Hester Lucy

Hamel, Frank. Lady Hester Lucy Stanhope: a new light on her life and love affairs. il '13 Funk $5 92

"Mr Hamel tells the story of Lady Hester's life—its happy childhood and girlhood, the disillusionment of her young womanhood, her departure from the England she was never to see again, her journey to the Holy Land via Malta, Constantinople and Egypt, and then the long years in Palestine, filled at first with triumphs never before accorded an English woman, but ending in disappointment, loneliness and poverty . . . The book has new viewpoints, which bring to us more vividly than has hitherto been done, a personality woven of the most conflicting characteristics." Boston Transcript

Stanley, Sir Henry Morton

Autobiography; ed. by Lady Stanley. il map '09 Houghton $6 92

"Sir Henry Stanley (1841-1904) prepared the greater part of this work, the supplementary narrative being made up from his letters, diaries, etc. It is an extraordinary life-record, beginning in the workhouse, where he was cruelly treated, continuing in a hand-to-mouth existence, a voyage to America, soldier life in the Civil war, the ups and downs of journalism, and finally, the African explorations which made him famous." Gorham, G. C. Life and public services of Edwin M. Stanton. 2v '99 Houghton $7 92

"Altho this work contains a sketch of Stanton's early life, his professional career and his general characteristics, its main purpose is to present the record of his relation to the Civil war, and to mark the place in history to which his services to the country entitled him. His public life embraced the secession winter of 1860-61, three years of the Civil war—1862-65, and three years of the reconstruction struggle which followed." Pittsburgh

Maitland, F. W. Life and letters of Leslie Stephen. il '06 Putnam $4.50 92

"Made up largely from Stephen's letters and the appreciative comments of his friends; a study of the man rather than a criticism of his work. Notable as a piece of literature and as a faithful and vital portrait." (N.Y. state lib.) A. L. A. sup.

"Sir Leslie Stephen (1832-1904) was preeminent as a critic, thinker and philosopher and as editor of the 'Dictionary of national biography.' Mr Maitland, who was Stephen's intimate friend for many years and his kinsman by marriage, tells with much detail the story of his life and brings together many of his letters. One of the most interesting chapters is devoted to Stephen's first visit to the United States, as some of the best letters are written to his American friends, notably Charles Eliot Norton, James Russell Lowell and Oliver Wendell Holmes." "Study of spiritual history. Contains the famous portrait of Coleridge seated 'on the brow of Highgate hill.' Saintsbury includes it in an essay on seven great biographies." (N.Y. state lib.) A. L. A.

"What Carlyle with wonderful art has done is to . . . lead us to believe that we are reading a life of Sterling, while Sterling is really 'vanished' and we are actually reading an extraordinarily interesting history of the places that he lived in, the men he knew . . . and the personality of his redoubtable and admirable friend and biographer, all thrown up on a background of the shortcomings of church and state of England in the nineteenth century." My mother and I. '17 Macmillan $1 92
Appeared in the Ladies' home journal, v33, October 1916

"One of America's foster children, now the head of a cultured American home, writes to tell of what she was and what she has become thru the courage and devotion of the little Jewish mother who has retained thru years of life in an American city her alien speech and customs. The remarkable charm of the book lies in the daughter's faithful picture of the mother and in her appreciation of what the Americanization of the foreign-born means in pain and separation, a gap bridged in this case by love and gratitude." Cleveland

Sterne, Laurence

Traill, H. D. Sterne. (English men of letters) '94 Harper 75c 92

Swedenborg, Emanuel

Trobridge, George. Life of Emanuel Swedenborg; his life, teachings, and influence. '19 New-church press $1 92

"Trobridge's is a 'different' biography of Swedenborg from any of its many predecessors. It is not written as a special plea, either to those definitely inside or outside the body of Swedenborg's followers. It is based on all the painstaking research which appears so plainly in some others' work, but in his is all tucked away. . . . The present book is an American issue of the second English (most popular) paper edition, omitting some few topical and other illusions of interest only to British readers." C. W. Harvey in Forward

Swift, Jonathan

Stephen, Sir Leslie. Swift. (English men of letters) '82 Macmillan 60c 92

"Perhaps, too much space is devoted to the part played by Swift as a politician; and yet nowhere have we met with an account of Swift's public career so concise and so comprehensive. That the little volume should be entirely satisfactory to the student of the period is impossible, for Mr Stephen has been forced to write, as it were, in shorthand, but the general reader will gain all he is likely to ask for from this admirably written narrative." "It is conversant with all the details of Swinburne's life, stored with all sorts of lively, intimate information concerning him, his work, his familiars, and with a literary criticism whose classic authority for praise and dispraise, in most instances at least, it would be hard to match among all that has been written about him." He was a scholar in the best sense of the word: a man of catholic culture. There has in our time, been no mind more sensitive to beauty." (William Sharp in Academy, 1895)

Thoreau, Henry David

Familiar letters; ed. with an introd. and notes by F. B. Sanborn. (Riverside ed.) '96 Houghton $1.60 92

"Includes apparently all the letters in Emerson's edition of 1865. . . . Mr Sanborn's additional matter is of two kinds—letters of Thoreau's not hitherto published in a book, and a good deal of editorial matter, rich in personal recollection and the fruit of much research. . . . Moreover Mr Sanborn has made good his purpose in undertaking a new collection, namely, to show Thoreau in a less aloof and stoical aspect than Emerson deliberately singled out." (Nation, 1894) Pittsburgh

"Sanborn's life is less satisfactory than Henry Salt's, which has the virtue of proportion, emphasis, focus, definite purpose; is less satisfactory, in some respects than the earlier book by Norman. Yet it is far from superfluous." Sanborn Foerster in Yale rev. 7:430

The biographer has made use of all possible sources of information, has included all the remaining unpublished Thoreau literary material, notably some early essays and has added to the interest of the volume by securing as illustrations about 20 old drawings, prints and family photographs, most of them here used for the first time. The volume is not well arranged and coherent, however, and the author's style is stilted even in his lapses into familiar anecdote. "The result is therefore, an excellent Thoreau biography in substance but not in form." (Boston Transcript) Cleveland

Hill, D. J. Impressions of the kaiser. '18 Harper $2 92

"The policies and ideals of the kaiser, the chief of which is to be esteemed an efficient war lord, are thoughtfully set forth by the author who spent the years 1888-90 and 1908-14 in Germany. In the first period he saw the kaiser as his people saw him; in the second, as American ambassador, he had intimate contact with him." Pittsburgh

"Not merely a book of recollections but a scholarly exposition of German imperialism." Pratt quarterly

Saunders, George. Builder and blunderer; a study of Emperor William's character and foreign policy. '14 Dutton $1.25 92

"A fair, frank characterization, written since the war began, from the point of view of an English newspaper correspondent who was for twenty years a resident of Berlin and had exceptional opportunities for getting behind the scenes. The author gives the kaiser his due as a nation builder, but maintains that the development of his promising character has been a supreme disappointment and his foreign policy and 'German world policy' a perpetual menace." Cleveland

Topham, Anne. Memories of the Kaiser's court. il '14 Dodd $1.25 92

"The writer . . . shows much insight into German life. She was appointed in 1902 teacher of English to the daughter of the Emperor William. . . . (Her book) is far more trustworthy than most of its kind, and her anecdotes of the kaiser and his family bear the stamp of sincerity." (Athenaeum, 1914) Pittsburgh

Wilson, James Harrison

Under the old flag. 2v '12 Appleton $6.50 92

"The unusually interesting recollections of the author's varied service in the Civil war and his impressions of its great commanders occupy the greater part of this biography, which also includes in shorter compass accounts of his part in the war with Spain and the suppression of the Boxers in China." N.Y. state lib.

"In fulness and readability, 'Under the old flag' is the best work of its kind [1912] that has appeared since General Howard gave us his two volumes of autobiography five years ago. In 'human interest' which it is the present fashion to clamor for, it would be difficult to indicate how the book could be improved." (P. F. Bicknell in Dial) St. Louis

Wilson, Woodrow

Archer, William. Peace-president. '19
Holt $1 92

"A cordial English estimate and appreciation of the president as a man, writer, politician and statesman. The concluding chapter considers his attitude toward a league of nations, and the appendix contains the fourteen points. Brief and comprehensive; agreeable style. Hale's 'Woodrow Wilson' is not up to date (1912) Harris and Low treat the subject principally from the angle of statesmanship; Ford and Robinson and West are not so comprehensive." A. L. A. bkl.

Ford, H. J. Woodrow Wilson, the man and his work. il '16 Appleton $1.75 92

Appendix: The place of the president in our political system, by Woodrow Wilson

"I have tried to give a systematic account of what Woodrow Wilson has done, and of the principles on which he acts. Besides recounting events, I have endeavored to exhibit them in their bearings upon the public welfare, apart from considerations of party advantage; and also to point out their constitutional significance." Where possible President Wilson's views are given thru judiciously chosen extracts from his speeches and writings. While undoubtedly a campaign document in intent, the book is unprejudiced, almost neutral in tone. The author is professor of politics at Princeton university." Cleveland

Halévy, Daniel. President Wilson. '19
Lane $1.50 92

"The larger part of M. Halévy's book is naturally devoted to the president's foreign policy. . . . Of Mr Wilson's personality M. Halévy says directly but little. He yet leaves a vivid impression of the portrait that has been forming in his mind. It is of a man who has consistently grown. . . . He seems to give him credit for a very American combination of intense idealism on the one hand and intense practicality on the other." (New Republic) Pittsburgh

Harris, H. W. President Wilson. il '17
Stokes $1.75 92

"Will interest Americans primarily because it gives so clear and well-defined a view from an English standpoint of President Wilson and his political policies and leadership. Also because of its unprejudiced and accurate presentation of American history from 1912-1917, and resumé of Mr Wilson's life." N.Y. Times 22:269

"A very compact and well-balanced book. . . . The impersonal temper in which with expert brevity the author has aligned and appraised the acts and objects of the President's domestic policy will be gratifying to his readers on this side. From his ability to look at both sides of a question with admirable disinterestedness, Mr Harris has approached a more complete standard of interpreting the President than Professor Ford has succeeded in doing." L. E. Robinson in Bookman 46:201

Low, A. M. Woodrow Wilson: an interpretation. '18 Little $2 92

Mr Low's point of view is that of a contemporary foreign observer, who, while having the benefit of long residence in the United States and an intimate knowledge of its people and politics, may justly claim to be uninfluenced by personal or political considerations. Since 1906 he has been the chief American correspondent of the London Morning Post, and he is the author of a two-volume work dealing with the psychology of the American people.

"I have made no attempt to write either history or a biography. What I have endeavored to do is to interpret the character and motives of Mr Wilson as revealed by his speeches, writings and statesmanship, letting the reader draw his own conclusions from the evidence presented." A. Maurice Low

"The 'Foreign policy of Woodrow Wilson, 1913-1917'; Macmillan, $1.75, by E. E. Robinson and V. J. West, is an excellent reference volume outlining Wilson's foreign policy, giving a chronology of the more important events, and extracts from ninety statements and speeches of the President and his secretaries of state announcing and carrying forward his policy. Purposes to show that it has been a consistent development of his principles." N.Y. state lib.

Reveries over childhood and youth. il '16 Macmillan $2 92

"Fragmentary memories written down to please the author and appealing to those interested in the man or his work. The style is unfinished, sometimes ungrammatical and unworthy of a poet noted for beauty of expression; but withal the book is imbued with a certain inconsequential charm, the charm of a unique individual who, judging from these concluding words, has not even yet found himself.

Always filling the center of the stage by right of a brilliant and fantastic personality; always at war with somebody or something, yet full of the spirit of camaraderie; snatching ardently at friendship, and strewing his path with enemies; forcing recognition from a reluctant public, while wounding its tenderest sensibilities; making merry over a 'succès d'exécution,' yet with that over-sensitiveness to annoyance which is the painful heritage of the wit.'" Richard Wagner to Mathilde Wesendonck; tr. by W. A. Ellis. '05 Scribner $4.50 780.92

"Frau Wesendonck was the wife of a wealthy friend of Wagner who built and placed at the disposal of the composer a small building near his own villa at Zurich. Here Wagner lived for sixteen months, while he was engaged in writing his 'Tristan and Isolde' and during this time Frau Wesendonck was his intimate friend and confidante.

"The world is indebted to Mathilde Wesendonck for two great achievements—she inspired the composer of 'Tristan and Isolde' and she therefore forced the composer to defer the completion of the 'Ring des Nibelungen' until his powers were in their full maturity. This remarkable collection of letters, first published after the death of [Frau Wesendonck] which took place in 1902, is another fruit of their relationship." (Times [London] 1905) Pittsburgh

The author gives just what his readers want to know: the facts of the lives and work of the people written about, their place in the art of the theater, their personal characteristics, the distinguishing marks of their style and the illuminating touches of anecdote and quotation possible only to a friend and co-worker." (Springfield Republican) Cleveland

See in connection with this the author's "Wallet of time," 2v, 1913 Moffat, $10

IndividualAnderson, Mary, afterward Mme de Navarro

A few memories. '96 Harper $2.50 792

"Mary Anderson played with much success such parts as Juliet, Perdita, Galatea, Rosalind, etc. from 1875 to 1889, when she retired from the stage. 'As a contribution to theatrical literature her volume is of very small importance, but as a bit of autobiography it is exceedingly interesting. . . . From first to last . . . there is not one note of affectation or insincerity. . . . The real interest and charm lie in the story of her life outside the theater . . . of the friendship of many of the most distinguished men and women of the day.'" (Nation, 1896) Pittsburgh

Bernhardt, Sarah

Memories of my life. il '07 Appleton $4 792

"The personal, professional and social recollections of a remarkable woman and great artist; versatile, egotistic, brilliant, audacious and always interesting." A. L. A. sup.

Booth, Edwin

Grossman, Mrs E. B., ed. Edwin Booth; recollections and letters. '94 Century $3 792

"The book is divided into three parts. The first and briefest gives us the recollections of Booth's daughter, the second consists of his letters to her, and the third, of his letters to various friends, 1860-1892. The recollections are far less of events than of characteristics, and afford little knowledge of Booth's life, but both the recollections and the letters deepen the impression of a noble and lovable personality and bring out the happy relations between father and daughter." Pittsburgh

Daly, Augustin

Daly, J. F. Life of Augustin Daly. il '17 Macmillan $4 792

"Biography of a great manager of high ideals who sponsored many of the best plays of his day, whose revivals of the older English drama were notable for their brilliance and whose companies were of an even excellence uncommon in the days when the star system was still in vogue. Includes many interesting anecdotes and more statistics, and forms a notable chapter in the history of the American stage from 1865 to 1898, when Mr Daly died." Cleveland

Frohman, Charles

Marcosson, I. F., and Frohman, Daniel. Charles Frohman: manager and man. il '16 Harper $2.50 792

Complete chronological list of the Frohman productions, p421-40

"Life of the theatrical manager who for so many years dominated the American stage. Follows his career from his early struggles to his death on the Lusitania. Brimful of humor and of anecdotes of his connections with the actors and actresses who became stars under him." N.Y. state lib.

Jefferson, Joseph

Autobiography. '90 Century $4 792

"As we follow the adventures of the actor, we meet with quaint characters, we hear good stories, we learn much about the art of acting, we have many portraits of prominent actors and actresses of the past, and we find ourselves drawn more and more to the author as he stands revealed to us in his own pages. . . . Mr Jefferson's style is easy and flowing; it is that of a man who has kept good company all his life, who has spoken every night the chosen words of the dramatists from Shakespeare to Sheridan. It has the cadence and the color of good dramatic writing, with a charm which seems to be his own." (Condensed from Nation, 1890) Pittsburgh

Wilson, Francis. Joseph Jefferson; reminiscences of a fellow player. il '06 Scribner $2 792

"Affectionate and minute, if somewhat indiscriminating appreciation of Jefferson as actor, author and man. Interesting chapter on the tour of the all-star cast of 'The rivals' of which Jefferson and Wilson were members." (N.Y. state lib.) A. L. A. sup.

Sothern, Edward Hugh

Melancholy tale of "Me"; my remembrances. il new popular ed '18 Scribner $2 792

"Whimsical, random recollections of the famous actor who when a little boy called himself 'Me.' Largely reminiscent of author's childhood but includes incidents of his later career. Pictures with sympathy and skill some of the leading actors of the last century. Portions appeared in Scribner's magazine. Fully illustrated." N.Y. state lib.

Author Index

This index includes only the names of the authors of all the collective biographies (920-928, with some in the 700's), and of such biographies of individuals as are classed in 232 and in the 700's. Most of the lives of individuals are classed in 92 and arranged alphabetically under the names of the subjects of the biographies, with no main entry under the author, either in the body of the Catalog or in this index.
